

Introduction

by Prof. Ramadn Abdel Tawab
Dean of Faculty of Arts- Ain- Shams University.

This is a good research in historical etymology , or in a closer way, in a specific branch of historical etymology. It is the branch of Etymology that deals with the history of words in one of the languages and identifies the form of every word in the ancient age that the historical information allow to reach at and study the way through which the word passes through with the changes that deal with from the aspect of use or meaning.

Dr. Mohammed El - Gawady has realized in his research another important aspect in the linguistic study; that is the effect of society at languages and the use of words. The variability of places and occupations, and also the moral and thoughtful level have doubtlessly its effect on the variability of language and the use of words or phrases.

So, Dr. M. El- Gawady has identified the most important factors that leads to variability of linguistic samples and limiting them to the different occupations. thoughtful and moral levels and the way of expression (written, spoken & read) and time.