

The scientific application of his research is limited to the phrases of the "Holy Koran" that we often do not use in the writings of our Cairo Society. They are about 250 words varied from verbs, to adjectives, nouns and derivatives.

His research has its specific (particular) indication that education is responsible- at its different levels - for bringing back life to those words and phrases in the writings of educators here and there. Nevertheless, I may disagree with the author in considering some words (such as...) outside the use of Cairo Writers whereas it is more likely common through their text.

Finally, I'd like to say that this research was very impressive for me . It announces a promising future for Dr. Gawady, the Physican, Scientist and Writer.
